The Four Steps to Planning a Successful Recruitment Campaign

1. Select and organize a membership committee.

- Qualities of a successful Membership Chairman/Director:
 - well-known, organized, well-spoken, knowledgeable, dedicated
- Qualities of a successful committee member:
 - active, knowledgeable, dependable

2. Develop a recruiting plan.

The 5 elements of a successful recruiting plan are:

- Analyze your current situation.
 - Where are you in terms of members, recruitments, other Posts' members and recruitments? Use last year's membership as the starting point of your goals.
- Set Goals.
 - What do you want to accomplish?

- Develop a plan of action. Consider:
 - Territory and time management
 - Personnel management and planning
 - Recruitment meetings and techniques
 - Implement your action plan.
 - Translate plans on paper into actions carried out by your recruiting team.
 - Track your results.
 - Use a system of controls and measurements to ensure results are achieved.
- 3. Set realistic goals.
- Two types of goals your plan should include:
- Quotas
 - Set a quota for new and reinstated members. The quota should be attainable. Set a percentage figure above the quota as your main goal, as well as a date to achieve each goal. Set benchmarks as well as an established timeline.
 - Objectives
 - Objectives help clearly identify opportunities and define what you want to do about them. They are guidelines for your goals; the “where you want to go.”

The S.M.A.R.T. system of goal setting:

Specific

The focus of the plan should not be to just increase recruiting by numbers, but to increase by a certain number through specific recruiting techniques.

Measurable

Quantify goals by selecting a certain percentage or set number you wish to achieve.

Attainable/Ambitious

Goals should require effort (ambitious), but be attainable.

Results-oriented

Goals should aim to achieve a specific result.

Timed

Continually monitor your progress to ensure you achieve your goals. Consider establishing recruiting deadlines that coincide with National, Department and District/County awards so members are eligible to win VFW awards.

SAMPLE GOAL:

The Post Membership Committee/Team will increase the Post’s membership by 10% within the next six months by conducting membership drives at the County Fair, contacting all unpaid members and recruiting new members.

4. Plan your activities.

Know the “3 Rs” of membership growth:

- Retain continuous members.
- Recover former members.
- Recruit new members.

Successful recruiting campaigns include a combination of these proven recruiting techniques:

1. Personal contact (preferred method)

- door-to-door
- membership recruiting booth
- meeting

2. Mail

- veteran count list for your ZIP code
- dues notices
- post newsletters
- benefits information

3. Email

- This is a great way to stay in touch with your members and remind them to pay dues.
- An emailed newsletter can keep members up to date with Post activities.

4. Referrals

- post members
- family & friends

5. Telephone

- This the most efficient way to contact prospects.

TIP: Personal contact is the most effective way to reach prospective members. Whatever recruiting method you use, always arrange a face-to-face meeting with the prospect.

Exercise #1

Using the form below, map out a complete recruiting plan based on this hypothetical goal:

GOAL: To increase VFW membership by 5% in the Post through reinstating former members from January 1 to March 1 of this year.
CALL TO ACTION Membership Recruiting Campaign
VFW Post # _____
RECRUITING GOALS
<ul style="list-style-type: none">• To increase Post membership by _____ percent, which mean adding _____ members by the target date of _____.• To train _____ Post recruiters during the period _____.• Add other goals for your Post: _____ _____ _____
ACTION PLAN TO MEET OUR RECRUITING GOALS
WHAT (Expected Results)
HOW (Recruiting Activities)
WHEN (Dates and times)
WHO (Personnel)
RESULTS (Outcomes)

How does your Recruiting Action Plan rate?

Before you implement the Recruiting Action Plan you create for your Post, ask yourself these questions:

1. Do the steps follow logically from your analysis of the current situation and the recruiting goal?
2. Are the steps clearly stated so each person knows what he has to do to achieve the desired results?
3. Will the steps lead you to achieve your goal?
4. Are your goals realistic?

If you answered "No" to any of these questions, take time to review and adjust your action plan.

MOTIVATE PROSPECTS TO JOIN

TIP: Along with these benefits, tell prospects about the special benefits of belonging to their local Post, such as a clubhouse or a service officer to address problems applicable to everyone in that particular Post.*

The Power of Benefit Recruiting

Benefit recruiting is looking at the organization's benefits and translating them into personal benefits that will be meaningful to each veteran.

How benefit recruiting works:

- Tell the veteran about the benefit.
Such as VFW insurance programs
- Tell the veteran about the personal benefit.
For example, VFW insurance provides health care protection to the veteran and his or her loved ones at minimal cost
- Use a proof statement to convince the veteran.
The money he or she saves on insurance and medical costs and the security of knowing that the veteran and his or her loved ones will be protected in case of accident or death

Exercise 2:

Explain the personal benefits and proof statements for each of the following VFW membership benefits:

- VFW magazine subscription
- Dignity Memorial funeral planning
- Health, dental, and life insurance
- National Veterans Service and National Legislative Service
- Military assistance programs such as Unmet Needs and Adopt-A-Unit

Effective Questioning and Listening Techniques

To effectively enlist members, you need to know something about each prospective member's situation and their needs and wants. Emphasize the benefits that will mean the most to your prospect. Remember to always remain flexible when interviewing a prospective member.

The 3-Step Questioning Process

1. Gather background information from the prospect.

When did you serve?

What branch of service were you in?

Do you have any family members or friends who served?

2. Ask questions to learn about the prospect's specific needs and concerns.

Do you have any service-connected medical needs?

Have you used your GI Bill or VA Home Loan benefits?

3. Ask questions that offer solutions.

Our organization has trained service officers who work directly with veterans to help them get answers to their questions. What concerns do you have that we could look into for you?

Questions that deliver the information you need are:

1. Close-ended questions: These are best when you are trying to confirm information. These questions can be answered with a yes or no.

- Did you serve overseas?
- Have you ever been a member of the VFW?

2. Open-ended questions: Use these to get more information about the problem or need. These questions can not be answered with a yes or no and usually start with: who, what, when, where, why or how

- What could the VFW offer you that would lead you to consider joining?

TIP: A good interview combines both close-ended and open-ended questions to keep the conversation moving and to help you get the information from the prospect you need.

Tips for Active Listening

Active listening is listening for more than just words, it's listening for meaning.

- Ignore outside noises, other conversations or distractions.
- Concentrate on what your prospect is saying.
- Listen for feelings instead of facts.
- Remain open-minded. Don't let emotions disrupt your thought process.
- Focus on key ideas instead of trying to remember everything that is said.

Four steps to becoming a better listener:

1. Outline:

Develop a mental outline of what the prospect is saying. Identify main points and what the prospect says to support those main points. Focus on key words and phrases to use as the main points of your response.

2. Categorize:

Organize what the prospect is saying into categories such as: likes/dislikes, need/wants, situation (family, single, and health), concerns about joining, problems that could be solved with VFW membership.

3. Question:

Ask questions whenever you don't fully understand what the prospect says.

4. Verify:

Even after you clarify, you still may want to verify your understanding of the prospect's message, especially if it's complex or detailed.

HANDLING/OVERCOMING OBJECTIONS

Do and Don't for Handling Objections

DO remain positive.

DO act politely.

DO talk about the benefits of VFW membership and what those benefits can mean to the prospect.

DON'T respond to personal references to the Post itself.

DON'T refer to any personalities or the operations of a particular Post.

Here's how respond to an objection:

- Restate the objection as a question, then give an answer to correspond with the prospect's basic need.
- Provide more information to clear up any misconceptions.
- Use member testimonials, if available.
- Restate membership benefits, both national and local.
- Re-emphasize the personal benefit of being a VFW member.
- Provide a proof statement to help erase doubts.
- Remain courteous and professional at all times.

Four Ways to Restate an Objection as a Question

1. Clarify the objection.
2. Let the veteran know you understand what he or she said so that they know you have been listening.
3. Lessen the impact of the objection by moving it from objection to question.
4. Gain time to organize your reply.

How would you respond to these objections?

Prospect: I'm too busy. I don't have time to be a member.

Recruiter: I know what you mean. I'm busy myself. But did you know that VFW feels every member who pays his dues is active and makes a contribution to the VFW? Just your name on our membership roll lends support to all of our programs. And you can enjoy most VFW benefits without having to attend meetings. Without busy people like you, we would not be able to carry on the programs that benefit not only veterans but citizens of the community as well.

Prospect: I'm not sure that I qualify.

Recruiter: Were you in the military? Were you overseas? Were you honorably discharged? Did you ever receive any campaign medals or ribbons? If so, you probably qualify.

Prospect: I'm not interested.

Recruiter: Are you interested in no-cost insurance, fringe benefits and your rights as a veteran? If you are, you are interested in the VFW.

Prospect: I can't afford it.

Recruiter: The cost averages about $45 a year which is only $3.75 a month. And you will receive many financial rewards with membership, like no-cost accident insurance, discounts on many items and VFW buying privileges. If you cannot afford to pay now, I can fill out an application and then when you are able to pay, I can come back.

We also have a great life membership program with two payment options:

- Full payment plan
- 12-month Installment Plan

How would you respond to these objections?

Prospect: I belong to the American Legion (or another veteran's organization).

Recruiter: Great! Did you know that there are only 10 million veterans out of 25 million who belong to all of the veterans' organizations combined? Since Congress doesn't cross check our rosters, you can increase the numbers by belonging to VFW, too.

Prospect: I don't drink/smoke.

Recruiter: Did you know that out of nearly 7,000 Posts across the nation, less than one-third of them have canteens? The emphasis is on helping veterans and their communities, not on drinking or smoking. The fact that you don't drink or smoke would not matter. You would be a welcome addition to our Post.

If you think you may lose the sale because the prospect indicates that he or she, for whatever reason, does not wish to get involved with a local Post, offer department membership-at-large as an option.

Results from extensive testing indicate there is a universe of veterans who believe in the philosophy of our organization, but would prefer membership-at-large rather than belonging to a local Post.

Many current conflict veterans choose to become a member-at-large due to a lack of interest in affiliating with a local Post that will not change to accommodate current conflict veterans and their families.

COMPLETING RECRUITMENT

Know the Signs that Say "I'm Ready to Join!"

The physical signs:

- nods head
- rubs chin

The verbal signs:

- makes a positive statement
That sounds good or that makes sense
- asks you to repeat something you already said
- reinforces what you have said
So, in other words, you could...
So, what you are saying is that I can...
- asks about cost
How much are the dues?
- inquires about membership
Where do we meet?
When will I start receiving my magazine?
When will I get my membership card?
- stops talking
The veteran has no more objections ... they're ready to join

Five steps to conducting an interview that leads to "Yes"

1. Restate the veteran's needs or problems as you've understood them.
2. Reiterate member benefits, emphasizing those that meet specific needs and wants.
3. Confirm the prospect's eligibility. Then, sign the prospect up by asking them to join the VFW and present the necessary forms.
4. Fill out the application with the prospect.
5. Collect dues.

PRESENTATION TECHNIQUES

Present a Professional Image

Your image is key to success as a VFW recruiter and representative. The more credible you appear, the more effective you'll be as a salesperson.

As you prepare to go out and meet prospects, dress appropriately so your audience will feel comfortable. Knowing your prospective audience is a major step in building trust and confidence.

Here are answers to questions recruiters commonly ask about their professional appearance:

1. What should I wear when manning a recruiting booth or making door-to-door visits?

The most effective uniform for a VFW recruiter also is the simplest. Wear a jacket of some sort - a sports jacket or athletic jacket is fine. Make sure you wear your badge. That's all you need.

2. Do I need to wear my VFW cap?

A VFW cap is optional. Use your judgment depending on the situation. If you think a prospect won't know you're with the VFW, then wear the cap - just make sure it's clean and uncluttered. However, it's not usually necessary to wear your cap.

3. I've earned many membership awards/lapel pins. Shouldn't I display those?

No. When you meet prospects, you want to keep the discussion focused on their needs and wants. Many recruiters have found these items are a distraction and actually distract from their presentation.

4. I've seen some recruiters hand out business cards. Are those a good idea?

Yes. We strongly recommend business cards as a way to establish your credibility, especially when door-to-door campaigning.

Techniques for an Effective Presentation

- Know what you want to say.
 - Make sure points are clear in your mind; always review recruiting materials before the interview.

- Organize your points logically.
 - People remember more of what they hear at the beginning and end of a conversation, so make your most important points first and repeat them at the end.
- Ensure the prospect is in the right frame of mind to listen.
 - If he or she seems busy, worried or stressed, arrange another time to visit.
- Speak the veteran's language.
 - Use simple, straightforward language.
 - Use familiar words.
 - Consider the prospect's perspective.
- Be aware of the emotions, feelings and responses of your prospect.
 - What kind of person is this? An introvert? Extrovert?
 - Watch for signals of irritation, confusion or boredom that indicate whether your prospect is listening, understanding and believing you.
 - Structure your presentations in a way to adjust your approach to your subject's response.
- Arouse and sustain interest.
 - Begin your presentation with an interesting short story.
 - Personalize the benefits to each veteran as much as possible. Keep their needs first.
 - Maintain interest by making frequent eye contact.
 - Avoid a monotone voice.
 - Involve the veteran in the presentation as much as possible. Hand him or her a benefits brochure to look over refer to while visiting.
- Keep it short and simple.
 - Present one idea at a time.

PROSPECT LISTS

Sources of prospective members:

- lapsed members and former members of defunct Posts
- lists provided by National Headquarters: shotgun lists; unpaid and relocated lists—available to Quartermasters by logging into their Online Membership System (OMS) account.
- referrals submitted by present members, friends and family
- chambers of commerce
- former members of a defunct Post
- Department or District/County Service Officer programs
- Recorded Service Discharge, available at county courthouses
- newspapers, radio and TV stations
- association rosters and rosters of other veterans' groups

How to keep track of your prospecting activities:

- keep track of all contacts.
- note if contact was made in person, by mail or by telephone.
- keep a record of all follow-up activity.

TIP: Always note the date and time you contacted your prospect. If contact was unavailable, consider trying a different day of the week or time of day.

POLISH YOUR RECRUITING SKILLS

How to Be a Better Recruiter: Door-to-Door

Key points:

- Canvass an area in groups of two – do not recruit alone.
- Go out on evenings during the week, and on Saturdays and Sundays.

Sample script for door-to-door campaigning:

Hello, I'm _____ with VFW Post # _____. We are in your neighborhood today talking to veterans. We would like to ask you a few questions. Are you a veteran?

If the answer is "no," thank them for their time and ask if they know any neighbors or family members who are veterans.

If the answer is "yes," continue with these questions:

Did you serve overseas? Did you receive a campaign medal or serve in Korea? Do you or have you ever received any veterans benefits?

If you believe the veteran is eligible for membership, continue:

Mr./Mrs. _____, we are conducting our annual membership drive. Membership in the Veterans of Foreign Wars is available to veterans who served overseas in times of conflict or war. I believe you are eligible. We would like you to join, and we would love to count on you as a member.

Explain the advantages of membership. Then continue:

All we need to do is verify your eligibility. I will fill out the application and you can make your check payable to VFW Post # _____ for $ _____, which represents one year's dues. We accept cash and credit cards also.

How to Be a Better Recruiter: Recruiting Booths

Key points:

VFW Recruiter Kits are available from the VFW Store. The kit contains everything you need to get started. A booth can be a very effective tool for small Posts and in sparsely populated areas. Recruiting booths work best with 2-3 representatives from the VFW. More than three can be intimidating to a prospective member.

Setting up a recruiting booth:

Preparation:

- Contact the manager of the facility. Ask for permission.
Select any place or event that is popular and where veterans are likely to go.
- Publicize the booth. Write a press release. Place posters and signs in windows.
The press release should include the date, time and location of the booth. Give it to local radio and TV stations, newspapers or other local sources of information. Place posters wherever prospects may see them.
- Bring plenty of materials to hand out.
Be sure to have benefits brochures and information sheets or flyers that include your Post's location, dues amounts, and whom to contact. Materials are available from Department and National Headquarters, or the VFW Store.

Operation:

- Decorate the booth with posters.
Display informational materials on the table. Display a large sign.
- Make sure at least one VFW member is always in the booth.
- Hold a drawing if local and state laws allow it.
Get a merchant or member to donate a gift. Prepare tickets with stubs that show the entrant's name, address and telephone number. Hold the drawing and save the stubs for later contact.
- As veterans visit the booth, inform them about VFW programs and distribute information.
- Sign up prospective members at the booth; make appointments for interviews or at least get their contact information (phone number or email addresses are best).
- Be sure to mention the Ladies and Men's Auxiliaries if the veteran is with family members.

Follow-up:

- Contact eligible members within a few days.
- Be sure your membership teams are well acquainted with VFW programs.
- Make prospects feel welcome upon joining.
Ask them to take an active role in their Post. Invite them to recruit other members.

How to Be a Better Recruiter: Telephone

Key points:

- Telephone contact allows for personal interaction without the time and energy spent with an initial door-to-door campaign.
- One person can call many prospects in a short period of time.
- You can use telephone contact to spark interest of inactive members.
- A phone call is a great follow-up to door-to-door and mail campaigns.
- Telephone contact also saves time for your prospective members. It is often easier to reach a prospect by phone than in person.
- In large areas, the telephone can help you reach more prospects in a shorter amount of time and at a lower cost than a door-to-door campaign or mail campaigns.
- The telephone can be used to obtain prospect lists simply by making survey calls.

Exercise #3

Do you know the 7 advantages of recruiting by telephone?

1. You can quickly establish personal _____ with the prospect.
2. It is the most _____ way to use your time and resources.
3. It's easy to generate _____ when you're face to face with a prospect.
4. It is a quick and easy way to _____ on prospects that have shown interest.
5. It saves _____ because you don't have to drive or walk to contact a prospect.
6. It is the only efficient way to reach prospects in a large _____ area.
7. The telephone is the ideal tool for conducting _____ and creating prospect lists.

On the following pages you'll find several sample telephone scripts you may wish to refer to when recruiting by telephone.

How to Be a Better Recruiter: Telephone

Sample telephone script for collecting past dues or reinstating a former member:

Mr./Mrs. _____ this is _____, with VFW Post # _____. We're conducting our annual membership drive. I noticed you have not paid your dues this year. Our goal is to collect the dues of every one of last year's members and to recruit new members as early as possible. Some Post members are in your area today collecting last year's dues. What time would be convenient for someone to stop by and pick up your dues?

If no time is stated, suggest one. If there is no objection, continue:

Thank you very much, Mr./Mrs. _____. We certainly appreciate your continued membership in our Post. We will have a member visit you by (repeat time). Stop by the Post the next time you are in the area. We would like to see you. Good-bye.

If there is an objection to the call at this particular time, continue:

I'm sorry I called at an inconvenient time. When would be more convenient?

If no time is given, suggest other days and times and ask if they would be more convenient. If the response is "I'm not interested," explain again the purpose of your call and ask questions to learn what his objection is. Then respond with a personal benefit of VFW membership to overcome the objection.

Conclude the call with an offer to send someone to collect the dues or arrange a home visit to further discuss membership.

Sample telephone script for talking with a prospective member:

Mr./Mrs. _____, this is _____. I am with the VFW Post # _____. We are conducting our annual membership drive. I'd like to talk to you for a few minutes about what membership in the VFW can do for you. Are you a veteran?

If "yes," continue with questions to determine eligibility. If "no," thank the veteran and ask if he or she knows any friends or colleagues who are veterans. If you determine that the veteran is eligible, continue:

Are you familiar with the VFW in our community?

If "yes," continue with questions to learn how VFW could benefit this prospect. If "no," name a benefit enjoyed by members of your Post.

We have a service officer who helps our members get the veterans' benefits they've earned. What concerns do you have that we might be able to help you with?

Or:

Besides the services our local Post offers, the VFW offers many programs that help our members save money. Are you familiar with our insurance programs? We have several, even accident insurance that's free to VFW members.

Continue with questions to learn more about his or her needs. When he or she indicates interest in joining, continue:

I'd like to come by and show you our benefits brochure and talk about some other things we're doing for our members. What would be a good time for you?

Then follow up with a phone contact or a visit.

How to Be a Better Recruiter: Mail Campaigns

Advantages of mail campaigns:

- easy to acquire leads
- effective follow-up to door-to-door contact, recruiting booth sign-ups and telephone calls or for sending dues reminders

Advantages of email campaign:

- effective way to keep in contact with your members
- effective way to conduct a membership campaign

How to be a better Recruiter: Follow-Up Campaigns

Although we have given you several suggestions, you have many options for conducting a campaign. A mailing campaign could be your initial recruiting action, followed by a telephone or door-to-door campaign. Recruiting booths may be followed up by a mailing, a telephone call, or a personal visit.

TIP: Whichever recruiting methods you choose, remember that a face-to-face meeting with each veteran is the most effective way to reach your recruiting goals.

MANAGE YOUR TIME & TERRITORY

Time management is the ability to work efficiently in order to accomplish your goals in an appropriate amount of time.

Effective time management involves:

- planning all recruitment activities including meetings and paperwork.
- creating "to do" lists that correspond to the overall recruiting plan.
- recording all project timelines, deadlines and schedules.

5 ways to avoid the "paperwork blizzard"

1. Make the completion of paperwork a habit.
Set aside a specific time to handle paperwork.
2. Concentrate on what's important.
Understand the purposes of forms and reports.
3. Organize your notes and other paperwork.
Have all the information you need when you start.
4. Handle each piece of paper once.
Stack-shuffling is a time-waster.
5. Keep all forms in one place.
For the individual recruiter, that place is the Membership Recruiting Kit. For the Post, there should be a designated place.

How do you rate as a time manager?

- | | |
|--|-----------|
| Do you plan each day? | Yes or No |
| Do you plan your travel route? | Yes or No |
| Do you use the telephone to save time? | Yes or No |
| Do you organize your paperwork and strive to keep it simple? | Yes or No |

Reach Your Goals Faster with Efficient Territory Management

Territory management is the process of dividing your local area into separate recruiting territories that are fair and manageable. A recruiter's territory should provide the opportunity to meet recruiting goals.

Important factors to consider:

- Size:
How large is it? A territory of a few square miles with a large population may be more challenging than a large territory with a small population.
- Major highways and in-town travel routes:
It should be possible to cover the territory without wasting travel time on unproductive areas or having to face delaying traffic problems.
- Major potential locations:
Make note of any area with larger potential for recruits.
- Existing members:
Where do current members live? Can you structure their recruiting route close to where they live?
- Growth areas:
Determine areas that are increasing in population. Work these areas more frequently.
- Recruiter's ability:
Consider your unique ability to recruit. Transportation or other factors may limit the areas you can cover effectively.

The Basic Principles of Effective Route Planning

1. Plan daily routes to cover a portion of the territory. Go in one direction on Monday, another on Tuesday, etc.
2. For larger territories, use hubs. Hubs are central locations to start and end each route in order to reach several prospective members.
3. Avoid construction, congested roads and highways.
4. Avoid backtracking. Plan a round-trip pattern by visiting prospects on one side of the highway on the way out, then the other side on the way in.
5. Be alert for changes in territory that require changes in your route plans. New prospects, increases or decreases in population and other factors may require changes.
6. Call Shotgun List responses first -- they're the hottest leads.
7. Use the territory map as a tool.

VFW MEMBERSHIP ELIGIBILITY MADE SIMPLE

VFW Qualifications:

- Must be a U.S. citizen or a U.S. national
- Must have honorable service in the U.S. Armed Forces.
- Must have overseas service reflected by one of the following:
 - An authorized campaign medal
 - Receipt of Hostile Fire/Imminent Danger pay, verified by a copy of a Leave and Earnings Statement (LES)
 - Service in Korea for 30 consecutive/60 non-consecutive days after June 30, 1949

Section 101 of the Manual of Procedure states that proof of service to establish eligibility for membership rests entirely with the applicant. It further states that the Post is responsible for assuring the eligibility of every member accepted into membership at the time of the application. Nothing in the national by-laws or Manual of Procedure clearly defines what documentation is acceptable proof of eligibility. On the Post level, a discharge paper or DD-214 indicating issuance of a recognized campaign medal has been the universally accepted proof, but is not the only form of acceptable documentation.

Commonly Asked Questions about Eligibility

Q. What can be done about lost separation documents?

Documents can be replaced by completing and submitting General Services Administration (GSA) Standard Form 180 "Request Pertaining to Military Records," available from any office of the Veterans' Administration or state Veterans' Department. Signature of the veteran is mandatory. Check with State Department of Veteran Affairs or County Veterans' Service Office to see if separation document is on file.

Q. Do Merchant Marines qualify for membership?

VA entitlements were approved for the members of the Merchant Marines who saw service during World War II under the provisions of Public Law 95-202. Through a decisional document signed January 19, 1988, all American merchant seamen who were in active oceangoing service during the period of armed conflict during World War II, December 7, 1941 - August 15, 1945, became eligible to receive discharge certificates from the U.S. Armed Forces for the purpose of obtaining benefits only under the laws administered by the VA. Merchant Marine veterans do not meet the VFW membership requisite of honorable service in the Armed Forces of the United States nor do the campaign medals issued by the War Shipping Administration identify with those that are recognized as meeting VFW membership eligibility qualifications.

Q. What about Korean service eligibility where the separation document does not reflect a campaign medal?

All veterans who served on the Korean Peninsula or its territorial waters for at least 30 consecutive days or 60 non-continuous days after June 30, 1949 are eligible for the VFW. In addition, veterans who served in Korea from July 28, 1954 to the present day are eligible for the Korea Defense Service Medal. Veterans wishing to have this medal added to their records should contact the National Personnel Records Center. Other sources of eligibility verification include: travel orders, pay vouchers, medical records, organizational records, morning reports, excerpts from ship's logs, assignment listings and buddy affidavits.

Q. I served on a nuclear-deterrent sub during the Cold War, and our service location was classified. How can I determine if I am eligible for the VFW?

Sailors who performed qualifying deterrent patrols were awarded the SSBN Nuclear Deterrent Patrol Breast Insignia. Orders reflecting the awarding of the SSBN Nuclear Deterrent Patrol Breast Insignia or a notation of award on the sailors DD-214 are sufficient for eligibility verification. If you believe a prospect warrants a campaign or service medal entitling eligibility to the VFW, a request must be submitted for the correction of information shown on the DD-214 or DD-215. Simply draft a letter identifying the specific correction to be made with statements including the unit, nature of the duties and dates of service qualifying the prospect for a recognized campaign medal. Mail the inquiry to:

EXERCISE ANSWER KEYS

Exercise #1

There is no wrong answer as long as your plan meets the following criteria:

- The steps follow logically from your analysis of the current situation and the recruiting goal.
- The steps are clearly stated, so each person knows what he has to do to achieve the desired results.
- The steps lead you to achieve your goal and your goals are realistic.

Exercise #2

Answers will vary.

2. Economical
3. Interest
4. Call
5. Time
6. Geographical
7. Surveys

Exercise #4

1. The three eligibility requirements for VFW Membership are:

- a) US citizenship
- b) Honorable service in the US Armed Forces. Service in the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marines, or Coast Guard (or their reserve/Guard components) with either an Honorable or a General (Under Honorable Conditions) discharge
- c) Overseas service reflected by one of the following:
 - a. An authorized campaign medal noted on the list contained in Section 101 of the VFW Manual of Procedure
 - b. Receipt of Hostile Fire/Imminent Danger pay, verified by a copy of the soldier's Leave and Earnings Statement (LES)
 - c. Service in Korea for at least 30 consecutive or 60 nonconsecutive days

2. As an organization, is the VFW made up entirely of combat veterans?

Answer: This is a difficult question, as many people will disagree as to the meaning of the term "combat veteran". Soldiers serving in Korea, for example, may never see actual combat but due to the fact that they serve in harm's way at all times there they are eligible to join the VFW.

3. Is a DD-214 required for VFW membership?

Answer: NO. Soldiers currently on active duty will not have a DD-214. In those cases, the appropriate orders showing overseas deployment to a qualifying area, or awarding of a campaign medal, or an LES showing hostile fire/imminent danger pay will suffice to prove eligibility.

4. What is defined in the by-laws and Manual of Procedure as acceptable substantiating documentation for eligibility in the VFW?

Answer: The VFW By-Laws and Manual of Procedure do not define what is acceptable substantiating documentation, citing instead that the post has a responsibility to determine eligibility. Methods that can definitively substantiate eligibility include (but are not limited to:

- a) A DD-214 showing Honorable service and awarding of an authorized campaign medal
- b) A LES showing Hostile Fire/Imminent Danger pay
- c) Orders showing deployment to an area where Hostile Fire/Imminent Danger pay was awarded
- d) Official government paperwork confirming the veteran's service in Korea.

Keep in mind that the requirements of Honorable service and U.S. citizenship must also be confirmed.

5. How do you substantiate Korean service (not Korean War) as eligibility?

Answer: Soldiers serving in Korea after July 28, 1954 are eligible for the Korea Defense Service Medal. However, since this medal was only recently created, most soldiers eligible for it will not have it listed on their DD-214. To verify their eligibility, there are various ways to determine service in Korea:

- a) Their last station of duty, noted on the DD-214, can be checked to see if it matches up with a unit stationed in Korea. This can be done through a quick online search.
- b) Paperwork such as reassignment orders, billeting orders, or other government paperwork can confirm the soldier's assignment in Korea.
- c) In some cases, mail with a US Postal Service postmark showing the soldier's address in Korea can verify that they were there.

6. Who is responsible to provide proof of eligibility?

Answer: This responsibility always lies with the applicant.

7. Who is responsible to assure eligibility of every member accepted to VFW?

Answer: The post's Post Reviewing Committee is responsible for inspecting EVERY application made through the post. It is recommended that a recruiter not submit an application to his Post Reviewing Committee without the appropriate documentation to verify eligibility.

8. If an applicant's separation document does not show foreign/sea service, can an applicant still be eligible for membership?

Answer: Yes. The section of a DD-214 that annotates foreign/sea service does not always reflect service in a TDY (temporary duty) status, and thus is not a definite proof of eligibility.

9. Would a secret/covert operation performed by a ship/individual preclude the entry of a specific campaign medal or an individual's separation document?

Answer: If an applicant claims they were not issued a medal due to a classified mission, it is still their responsibility to prove eligibility by one of the means noted above.

10. Are WWII- era Merchant Marines eligible?

Answer: NO. The Merchant Marines are not a branch of the U.S. Armed Forces, even in wartime. As such, they would not qualify for the VFW. Although they may have received Coast Guard or Navy discharges for the purpose of receiving veterans' benefits, they were never enlisted or commissioned into the U.S. Armed Forces, which is a requirement for VFW eligibility.
